

TENTH AIR FORCE

COMMANDER'S SAFETY VISION

All Airmen - officer, enlisted and civilian - are our number one priority. Each of you is a member of our 10th Air Force family, and I expect your involvement as leaders in safety. We have an obligation as commanders, functional managers and supervisors to provide our Airmen a safe and healthy working environment.

Our goal for 10th AF is zero accidents and fatalities in our command and the Air Force. We are fortunate to have the techniques and procedures in place to ensure we all go home safe at night. With that being said, use your checklists, tech orders and procedures to ensure we all comply with Air Force Instructions and OSHA guidance.

Training and wartime missions are critical, but we must accomplish the mission and be successful in our operations while accepting as little risk as possible. Risk Management must be integrated into on- and off-duty activities, support, mission planning and execution. Commanders must solicit inputs and determine acceptable levels of risk commensurate with the significance of the mission.

I encourage all commanders, functional managers and supervisors to promote safety into all operations and exercises. Some key preventative measures I would encourage are: promotion of safety at commanders' calls, newsletters, participating in Safety down days and promoting the Voluntary Protection Program. If we cannot employ and deploy valuable resources and bring them home safely, we fail in our mission to deliver combat readiness. Safety is the core in reaching our goal of eliminating mishaps to maximize mission success.

FRANK J. PADILLA, Maj Gen, USAFR
